FRESH MILK EXPORTS

Historically, due to strict import trade barriers, the export of fresh milk into China was complex. The stringent controls by China on dairy products meant milk remained in quarantine for 14 – 21 days, thereby reducing the product's shelf life and viability.

Extensive research and trials were completed to meet specific cold chain requirements and industry standards. These trials produced successful results that satisfied the relevant food authorities in both Australia and China which allowed the fast tracking of the import clearance process.

We handle and control the seamless cold chain. This includes generating and supplying all data for efficient, transparent supply chain management. As part of our quality control procedures, we perform sample testing in various conditions and obtain quarantine approval in China.

As a result, we now move Australian fresh milk to China from producer to end consumer in as little as five to seven days. This expertise makes the export of fresh milk a viable business for our important dairy customers.

We expedite
30,000 Litres
of fresh milk to China – each week

EGG EXPORTS

During the avian flu outbreak in the Northern hemisphere, increased pressure was placed on the global supply of eggs. In response, we facilitated shipments of liquified eggs from Australia into China.

We were flexible in implementing a solution for this specific commodity by utilising our proven methodology for other dairy products.

Our value added services include packing and palletising, quality control and import clearance.

→ Our cold chain logistics for liquified egg exports to China maintain stable temperature control conditions throughout

COFFEE & NUTS IMPORTS

The import of raw coffee beans and nuts into Australia is subject to strict Government regulations. Our Key Account Managers and Customs Brokers provide clients with a checklist of the import requirements and help new importers to arrange import permits to cover multiple products from multiple countries.

We also provide quarantine approved warehousing solutions specifically tailored to our clients needs. Our value added services cover a large range of quarantine required activities that continually arise when importing raw coffee beans and nuts.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES

We work closely with the Australian fruit and vegetable industry to develop export opportunities so that consumers around the world can enjoy the best fresh produce that Australia has to offer.

We now ship over 10,000 tons of citrus fruit to China - a market, that until recently has been dominated by domestic suppliers.

Whether it is vegetables to the Middle East, cherries to Hong Kong or citrus fruit to Shanghai, we have the experience to assist your business and deliver a tailored solution for your fresh produce exports.
